

Making the links: Total Place gets local

Total Place is a new initiative that seeks to secure improved services at lower cost through closer collaboration at a local level, a focus on place and deeper engagement with citizens and customers. Find out what this means for neighbourhood management, hear from teams already involved in a pilot focussing on their neighbourhood management area and network with colleagues,

Agenda

9.00 Registration

9.15 Welcome
Ben Lee, NANM

9.30 What is total place? What does it mean for local people?
Lynn Wardle, Taylor Haig
Based on her work with several of the Total Place pilots, Lynn Wardle explains how Total Place works and what its implications might be for neighbourhood working

10.00 The Demonstrator Project: total place in one neighbourhood
Richard Kenny, Birmingham CC
Focussing on the West of the borough a theme of the pilot is looking at whether focussing on a sub-local authority level can improve local services, better engage communities and reduce council expenditure.

10.30 Discussion: what are the opportunities and threats of total place for neighbourhood working? Q&A

11.00 Break

11.15 Workshops

A. Total Place through a neighbourhood management pathfinder area
Nick Parker, Oldington and Foley Park
Find out how Oldington and Foley Park Neighbourhood Manager Nick Parker has been involved in Worcestershire's Total Place pilot, which is targeting areas of highest need

B. The task force to tackle severe deprivation

Colin Maclean, Margate Task Force

As part of Total Place Kent is focussing on setting up a co-located, multi-agency team to improve outcomes for local people

- 12.15 Lunch
- 13.15 Workshop session 2 (workshops repeated from morning)
- 14.15 Discussion: Using the total place principles in your area
- 14.45 Closing remarks
- 15.00 Close

To book your place click here